This is very good. A plush pasture of black fruits of every description, liquorice, bonbon and bitter chocolate, is deftly pruned by firm framing tannins, each impeccably detailed. The oak is beautifully integrated, tucked in behind the veneer of polish. This boasts the Vale's telltale richness married to restraining structural pillars.

The "Woodhenge" is a timber construction outside the Wirra Wirra winery, a reflection of the quirky sensibilities of Wirra's late founder Greg Trott. The estate's wines speak eloquently of McLaren Vale soil, marrying tradition with modernity. This is a rich, warm shiraz of good concentration and length. Oak is folded seamlessly in, acidity is fresh and tannins are ripe.

Aromas of blackberry, black licorice and blueberry follow through to a full body, tangy fruit and vanilla with oak at the finish. Juicy and uplifting. Drinkable now but better in 2019.

Smells good, rich and inviting, typical of robust McLaren Vale Shiraz. Blackberry, sweet spice and vanilla, toast, light earthiness, plenty of chocolate. Full bodied, perfumed and thick, with pretty earthy tannin, a little glow of alcohol warmth, bold flavour, some saltiness, and a robust tannic finish – almost sticky. The acidity is a little bit too fresh and edgy for me, but it's a wine that will please many.

Rich and complex with layered notes of eucalyptus/sage/tea leaf and tight, firm tannins. The evolution of this wine will be compelling to watch.
