Ripe, beeswax, light honey aromas and ripe lemons. Sweet but not cloying with bright lemony acidity. Lovely long finish. Very good with the food. - Kym Milne, MW

Light delicate nose. Hints of floral notes on the palate. Balanced sweetness. Hints of apricot and peach coming through on the finish. Well balanced with the apple tart. Good acidity and sweetness go through the entire palate when tasted together. - Brent Marris

Like ice wine, this was made from riesling juice concentrated by freezing. A spicy, aromatic nose suggests peach syrup, lime cordial and floral scent. It's sweet, yet fresh and light, a bit like a sweet Mosel. Its delicacy, purity, ultra-fine texture and zippy acidity give wonderful balance.

Hukapapa is Maori for ice or frost, and this delightful expression was made from riesling juice concentrated by freezing. Golden in colour, it has rich peach and tarte au citron-flavoured fruit beautifully balanced by fresh acidity. The texture is gently caressing. An old-fashioned trifle would be a great match.

Tasted nearly three years ago, the wine has mellowed but still tastes reasonably fresh and youthful. Quite a gutsy and slightly phenolic style. Good food wine with honey, mango and subtle citrus flavours. Drink 2018 to 2022.

Made from juice concentrated by freezing, this luscious sweet wine from Marlborough's Wairau Valley balances stonefruit and honeyed elements with tangy mandarin and lime marmalade-like characters in lovely harmony. It's intense, yet fresh and pristine, with precise acidity emphasising purity of varietal fruit.
