How one could afford to mature a wine at this price in new French oak is beyond me, but it doesn't stop there, for the quality of the fruit deserves it. There's an abundance of cassis, black olive and all-up savoury flavours on the medium to full-bodied palate, ripe tannins a further bonus.

Fruity blend delivering that neat mix of wild berries, plums and blackberry. A little vanillin oak complements the supple tannins in this generous wine for drinking in the short term. The integration of fruit oak is a feature as it really brings out the lively fruit expression perfectly. Best red blend. Best drinking now to 2020.
