Melanie Brown: Bright, upfront, crunchy Braeburn apple notes are supported by beautiful complexity, with creamy nuances. Beautiful structure and poise here: balanced, seductive and beautifully textural.

Rebecca Gibb MW: Fresh, round, satisfying and eminently drinkable, this is a fruity and fresh Pinot Gris, with excellent texture and concentration that's beyond the average.

Roger Jones: Focussed, linear, savoury vegetation – but shows control on the palate, which is delicate with perfect fruit and still holds some evolving acidity. A fabulous wine with amazing purity and class.

Fragrant and complex bouquet filled with aromas of flowers and ripe fruit with a currant of minerality. Dried pear and apple, a hint of tropical fruit, white spice and light savoury lees layer adding complexity. Supple and silky texture on the palate with a warmth and spiced white flesh fruits; balanced, weighty, decent acidity and finishing dry. An excellent example.

Very pale straw colour. The nose is elegant but intense with finely concentrated aromas of pears and stonefruits with floral lift and hints of honeysuckle. Dry to taste, the palate is tightly bound and crisp. The fruit expression is more slender than a riper vintage, but this still has fruit intensity of stonefruits and pears. The mouthfeel is near-racy, but flows seamlessly to a cool, clear finish.. From vines up to 22 y.o., fruit hand-picked and WBP, fermented partially by indigenous yeasts in tank and 500 L puncheons to 13.5% alc. and 4 g/L RS, the wine aged on lees.

An impressive sense of concentration, poise and polish to this pinot gris. An array of citrus and apple-pear fruit aromas and flavors. Finishes sweet-ish and smooth.
